Senator Crittenden.

This distinguished gentleman is at present creating a tremendous sensation in the opposition camp. The blackest of Black Republicans; the most fanatical of Abolitionists; and the most intense of "Americans," vie with each in gentle strife to outbid Mr. CRITTENDEN. A special train is chartered to convey him from Covington to Lexington; a half hour at the three principal points on the road is graciously vouchsafed to the denizens thereof, that they may behold Mr. CRITTENDEN, and mayhap hear him speak. In Ohio the B. R.'s turn out en masse headed by TOM CORWIN, to do Mr. CRITTENDEN honor. Mr. TOM CORWIN lets off a little uncontrollable admiration thus:

"It was surprising to many that a man from the South should raise himself above a narrow sectional prejudice, and represent what may be regarded as the public sentiment of Ohio, rather than the prevailing feeling in his own State."

What is this "narrow sectional prejudice" above which Mr. CRITTENDEN elevated himself? Can any one tell? Perhaps Mr. TOM CORWIN had some idea of what it was when he said that he (Mr. CRITTENDEN) "was attracted to himself some political odium in the south, and even in the State which he so ably represented."

From what party does Mr. TOM CORWIN anticipate this "political odium"? From the Emancipationists, or from the Pro-slavery men of Kentucky? We pause for a reply.

Personally, we have none but the kindest feelings for Mr. CRITTENDEN. We cannot regard him as a great man, but we trust his friends will charge our lack of faith in his statesmanship to our want of appreciation, rather than to our malice. Mr. CRITTENDEN has had rare opportunities to become great. He has been in the Senate of the United States during some of the most momentous crises in our political history. What has he done?

Ask echo! He has ever been opposed to the true policy of the country. He has ever been a dead weight to our national advancement. The many opportunities which he has had to honor himself and his country he has disregarded. When Know Nothingism was in its decline—nay, when it was politically dead—Mr. CRITTENDEN attempted to breathe vitality into it—to galvanize it into life by uniting himself to its loathsome corpse. But he did not succeed. He merely caught the political contagion, which is consigning him to a political grave. The people of Kentucky have declared against the revolting doctrines of Know Nothingism, and the opinions of Mr. CRITTENDEN. At nearly the close of a long political life, Mr. CRITTENDEN discovered that the doctrines of Sam were just the thing. He did not discover the doctrines—Oh no! it was a wonder he did not—but he discovered that they were just the thing the country needed, and that they were destined to become universal and irresistible. He opened his eyes upon Sam—congratulated Sam and the country—took Sam to his bosom, and Sam died.

And now, in the evening of his political day, he is returning home, the orator of Depot meetings—the hero of excursions trains, and the idol of whom? Black Republicans and Know Nothings—a sort of sheep-grazing in which the black predominates. Why? Because he opposed the admission of Kansas under a constitution which recognized slavery; because he threw his weight in to the scale in opposition to at least nine tenths of the people of the South, and because he originated and advocated a wishy-washy, skin a daisy substitute for the Lecompton Constitution.

The "Ignorance" Candidate and his friends—Elegant and highly perfumed extract of Prentice.

George D. Prentice vs. D. George Prentice.

THE ASSERTION.

"His (George R. McKee) opponents find that the public printing fraud has been exposed, and have already invented another in regard to his opposition to common schools. George is emphatically a common school advocate."—Louisville Journal, April 15th, 1858.

UNENVIABLE NOTORIETY.—We observe that some of the newspapers in other States are commenting upon the introduction of a bill into our Legislature to abolish the School System in Kentucky. Mr. McKee the mover of the measure, seems to be gaining a notoriety which, we should suppose, few men would desire. To be the leader of an ignominious party may be agreeable enough for barbarians, or persons half civilized; but men, professing the usual intelligence of American citizens, would we should think, shun a station to which must be attached an everlasting odium.—Louisville Journal, 1843.

LOOK OUT FOR FUN.—A Concert will be given at the Theater to-morrow evening, by a Blind Family, which is said to surpass anything of the kind ever exhibited. All kinds of Music, Singing, etc. Price of admission, only Twenty five cents.

DEATH OF CAPTAIN CALHOUN.—Captain PATRICK CALHOUN, a gallant officer of the United Army, died at pendleton, South Carolina, last week. He had been in the service for a number of years. He was a son of the late Hon. JOHN C. CALHOUN.

The Mormons Migrating.

The report that Gen. Scott received dispatches from Gen. Johnston to the effect that the Mormons received Gov. Cumming, and intended to fight, is certainly untrue. The following from the St. Louis Democrat, of the 17th, gives the true account of affairs, which is more favorable. The Democrat says:

The party of Col. Kane, from Camp Scott, arrived here yesterday morning on the steamer Emigrant. The Colonel remained but a few hours, leaving for Washington on the Ohio and Mississippi afternoon train. The information brought by his party; of whom we may give the name of Major Howard Egan as authority, is, in brief, with additional interesting details, that telegraphed to us from Coville on Monday night.

The party left Camp Scott on the 16th of May. Governor Cumming had returned there from Salt Lake City. He stated that almost instantly upon his arrival at the Mormon city he found the population moving off. The movement had indeed commenced, and shortly increased till the entire people of the Northern settlements were in motion. Brigham Young formally delivered into his hands, the "great seal," and all State records. The Mormon chiefs appeared particularly solicitous that Gov. Cumming should take possession of these momentous documents, relying upon this measure as the only one of their preservation. They were urgent that the Governor should at once deposit them in a fire proof safe. The reason of this soon transpired with the discovery, that extensive preparations had been skillfully made to give the city to the flames, a la Russians at Moscow. Large quantities of dried fence-wood had been arranged in many houses which a match would have kindled to conflagration. Happily better counsels prevailed among the leaders, and strenuous endeavors were successfully made by the major part of the population to prevent the catastrophe.

Having received the capitulation of Brigham, and taken efficient means to prevent the still dreaded burning of the city, Gov. Cumming, deemed it proper, if possible, peaceful to prevent the migration southward, and set off after the train. The whole population of the settlements were on the road—a few guards alone being left in the villages. The number of men, women, and children, could scarcely be less than thirty-five thousand. Many were far advanced, so that it was useless to pursue them. The forward trains were three hundred miles southward from the valley. The Governor counted seven hundred and fifty wagons loaded with families. They were abundantly provisioned. Many had dressed had "battered" by the way; i. e., had built adobe houses of the road mud. The cold and heavy rains had disappointed their expectations of the dry weather necessary to the permanency of such structures, and had washed away their walls. They were thus left exposed to the winds and rains. But there appeared no very serious suffering, through much and trying inconvenience. The attempt to procure a general abandonment of the march, was, of course, futile.

There is uncertainty about the destination which the Mormons leaders now propose to themselves. They keep their own counsel in this respect with remarkable closeness. The suggestion that they were bound for Cedar City is rather discredited by the fact that they have driven large herds of their cattle southward of the point. It is feared that they may coalesce with some of the Indian tribes of the South, which are already sufficiently vexatious, and thus give much trouble to the Government. They themselves complain bitterly of the treatment of roving parties of Indians, who, finding them defenseless on the road, cannot resist the temptation presented by so much booty. The Indians ridicule the Mormons, saying they are squaws, and can't fight.

Capt Scott remained healthy. The accounts of inadequate provisions have been exaggerated. The quality of their fare is alone matter of complaint with the troops. Gov. Cumming has taken efficient steps to remedy all inconvenience, and preclude the possibility of suffering in the army from this source.

THE BOURBON RAZE CASE.—The Paris Play says the preliminary examination of CHAMPEL, who is accused of committing a rape upon his sister in law, in that county.

The trial of Robert H. Champ, accused of committing a rape upon Mrs. Sallie C. Champ, the widow of his brother, took place on Monday last, before an examining court, composed of Esqs. Lincoln and Terry. He was proven to be worth $40,000, and bail was required to the amount of $15,000, his brother-in-law, the Congregational, going on the bond. Mr. Champ was brought into the court on a coach, the driver having been put off Friday, in consequence of his inability to attend. The wealth and high social position of the parties attracted an immense crowd to witness the trial. Fearing the relatives of Mrs. Champ might deal summarily with the prisoner, if released in the crowd, it was announced that he had failed to give bail, and the sheriff started off with him in the direction of the jail, where he drove off in a buggy with his son. His attorney had previously applied to the Judge for a guard for the jail, but he did not consider he had authority to grant one.

It was proven, and admitted by Mrs. Champ, that a Gipsy, a short time since, foretold that she was to be ruined by her brother-in-law. Mrs. Champ also dreamed the night before the occurrence that she was dressed in a white gown and that Champ stabbed her. She had previously examined the house during the night. It is not our intention to give the evidence in the case, as the regular trial is set for the second week in July.

A "RELIGIOUS" KENTUCKIAN SWINDLED BY THE BALL GAME.—Robert Swift, an elderly man, from Bracken County, Ky., was made the victim of the ball game, yesterday morning, in the Seventeenth Ward, near the Water-works, by which he lost $15—all the money he had at the time upon his person. Swift says the men who robbed him were young; that they met him while he was walking leisurely along, and entering into conversation with him about crops and the weather, he learned that they were from the same State, and had lived for some months in his county—all of which the unsophisticated individual believed. They then began talking about churches, perceiving that Swift professed a "religious" feeling, and grew eloquent over the spiritual battles that had been recently fought and won for Christ—as they phrased it—in this redeemed and regenerated land. Yet we have a tuckian became convinced that they were a pair of Saints that should long since have been transferred to another and a better sphere. After half an hour's conversation they met a third party, and then the bet was made and the money lost. How Swift, a pretended member of a church, could reconcile his participation in the swindle with his conscience and faith, we know not, but presume in these days of Phalaris and his like, there are modes of sanctified sinning, of which we must ever remain in profound ignorance.—Cin. Enquirer.

THE BRIDAL SKIRT.—The spread of the skirt business has become so extensive that societies in this line can hardly be expected. Yet we have a novelty in the "Extension Bridal Skirt." Its peculiar advantage consists in its construction. Instead of being torned of continuous bars of hoops, so objectionable to the wearer, it is looped throughout; or we might say joined with many hinges. The use of the old skirts, to be graceful, requires a sort of apprenticeship in learning to raise it when sitting down. All this is obviated by the Bridal Skirt. It is at once an adjustable skirt, with an adjustable bustle, perfectly plain, light and airy. It preserves the wearer in bon point while walking, and in a tete-a-tete allows an admirer to approach within a pleasing distance.—Utica (N. Y.) Telegraph.

What a perfect love of a skirt to be sure.

HARPER—Keenon & Crutcher have just received Harper for July. It is as usual interesting. K. & C. have all the late publications.

"The highest waterfall in the world is in the Sandwich Islands, and is stated to be between four and five thousand feet high. The stream on which the water falls occurs runs among the peaks of one of the highest mountains—so high that the water actually falls to the bottom—so great is the distance that the water is converted into mist, and is again converted into rain."

The water from the clouds falls more than five thousand feet, and we ought to be thankful that it doesn't turn to mist before reaching the earth and ascend to the clouds again.—Lou. Jour.

If some of the recent rains had followed the example of the Sandwich Islands water fall, and ascended to the clouds again, they would not have been much mist.

The Cincinnati Enquirer has the following paragraph in reference to the vote of the Senate in recognizing Messrs. RIGGS and FROTH as the Indiana Senators:

The vote was not strictly a party one. Senators Madison & Virginia, Douglas of Illinois, Pearce of Maryland, Brodick of California, Democrats, voted against Messrs. Bright and Fitch's right to their seats, while Kennedy of Maryland, and Thompson of Kentucky, the "American" Senators, voted in their favor. This decision of the Senate will have a most wholesome effect in discouraging scenes of anarchy and violence in State Legislatures, and stop minorities from resorting to violence and revolutionary means to prevent minorities in those bodies from choosing Senators. It is high time the practice received its quietus.

A GREAT MEDICINE FOR FEMALES.—Hundreds of stimulants have been invented and sold, purporting to the specific in the various diseases and derangements to which the delicate form of woman render her subject. The result of all these stimulants had been to impart momentary activity to the nervous system, and false vigor to the muscles; this relief has been succeeded by a depression and prostration greater than the original ailment, and the repeated attempts of invalids to build themselves up by these false remedies, have finally ended in destroying what little vital organization was left. But in using "Barkness's Holland Bitters," you will find no such distressing results. It is purely vegetable compound, prepared on strictly scientific principles, after the manner of the celebrated Holland professor, Barkness. Under its influence, every nerve and muscle receives new strength and vigor, appetite and sleep return, and finally, perfect health. See advertisement in another column.

THE FLOOD.—The Wabash is again at the highest stage of the season. It rose at the rate of one inch an hour all day yesterday, and at 6 o'clock, it was at its highest. Last evening was very nearly up to the highest point attained this season, and continued to rise rapidly. The country opposite Vincennes for about six miles is covered with water from six inches to fifteen feet deep. The current is very rapid in the prairie just beyond the timber.

All attempts to save the levee below town were abandoned yesterday afternoon, and the people betook themselves to preparation for saving all the movable property they possibly could. If the river continued to rise during the night the whole of Cathlamet prairie is a lake this morning. This will entail a dreadful loss upon the small farmers who reside in the lower prairie, very many of whom cannot afford to lose their growing wheat, to say nothing of being deprived of their crops of corn and clover.

Several families residing on the opposite side of the river were brought over to the city yesterday afternoon.

A portion of the railroad trestle work across the prairie opposite town was deemed unsafe yesterday evening, and passengers and baggage were ferried over.—Vincennes Gazette, Tuesday.

A SENTIMENTAL ROMANCE.—Kisses MORE PRECIOUS THAN JEWELS.—A night of two ago, a fair sweet girl, residing on Race, near Fourth street, was partially awakened from her slumbers by a man in her chamber, but not fully aroused, she lay with closed lids a minute, when the sound being repeated, she started up, and saw by the little jet of the gas burner a man's face disappearing through the window. She screamed involuntarily, and her father, armed with a revolver, was in her room in a few moments, greatly agitated and alarmed, questioning his lovely daughter as to the cause of her fear. She told him what had frightened her, and he ran to the open window, looked out upon the balcony and into the open yard, but could see nothing of the terrible man, the midnight robber and disturber of the daughter's rest.

The parent was disposed to think his daughter had been dreaming; that her imagination had painted what was not real; but on returning to her apartment she assured him that she was wide awake, and that she had seen all that she had stated. Her father was still incredulous, when in looking round, he observed upon his daughter's dressing bureau, where a valuable enameled mirror, and a necklace were lying, a slip of paper, on which was written:

FAIREST, DEAREST GIRL.—I came here to rob, but your beauty has made me honest for the time. I saw these jewels, but believing them yours, I could not take them. I have, instead, stolen what I value more—three delicious kisses from your unconscious lips. Do not be offended, they were gentle and innocent.

AN UNKNOWN LOVER.

This story sounds romantic, we are aware, and perhaps some of our matter-of-fact readers will be skeptical in reference thereto, but we are assured upon the best authority, that it is strictly true, and we publish it as an evidence that the age of gallantry and sentiment is not at an end; that the race of Rinaldo Rinaldini is not yet extinct.—Cincinnati Enquirer, 16th.

THE CHILD ANGEL.

The Nelson Hotel was the largest and most fashionable resort in a town on a sea shore, a popular watering place, famous in the annals of the wealthy. It stood not far from the brink of the sounding sea, and commanded a prospect of surpassing beauty.

Among the very select few who came here for the purpose of invigorating and improving health, were a young couple by the name of Hayden. Harriet, the wife, was an interesting woman, not yet thirty, with a quiet, gentle manner, and a voice whose every tone seemed to have been given to her by the angels of music. She was a New England woman of pious extraction, and a sweet, practical Christian. But the sweetest creature in this beautiful group was Antoinette Hayden, a child of three years. She was not robust in flounces, or laces, or ribbons. Her little limbs were unfettered by fashion, and had the freest play; her eyes were all nature, her walk and talk and play were as a child's walk and talk and play should be.

Loose Ben was an uncouth caricature of a human being, of some sixteen years of age, slouching in his dress, dirty, sometimes ragged, bearing all the gibes put upon him with sullen men and stoical silence. Loose Ben shuffled, looked suspiciously at everything from under his eyebrows, never raised his voice, never seemed to care whether they called him fool or knave, and only came to gather his loose limbs together in some sunny place after his services were over for the day, and think—what could the poor outcast think? He was a German, and possibly never knew his parentage; he would not say whether he had any father or mother. It was his duty to make fires in the rooms of those who were invalids, in the early morning, and for this purpose the father of little Antoinette employed him; for though it was summer time, yet the chill air of the sea made the early morning raw and cold.

So, with an armful of wood, Loose Ben wended his way to No. 56, a large room on the second floor. As he entered, Mr. Hayden glanced up from his dressing-table and followed his lazy motions with his eyes for a moment. Little Antoinette sat on the floor by the bedside, half covered with the lace curtains that fell like spray over her spiritual face and figure. She too, looked on earnestly, suspending her play for a moment, and then, as his labor progressed, she stood by his side. He hied toward her, and seemed paralyzed into greater stupidity at her sweet smile. She did not mock him, scream out, or spring from him, as other children did, nor call him unfeeling names; but as she stood there with a saintly light on her brow, she laid one white, dimpled hand on his ragged sleeve, and with winning voice asked, "Does you love God?"

He was too much startled for the moment to speak, but the great shining eyes beamed into his black-luster orbs, and again that voice of surpassing beauty asked, "Does you love God?"

He looked up, then, looked down awkwardly, and in his broad Dutch dialect said, half sheepishly, "Ya-as."

"Does you pray to God in the morning?" persisted the little one, still keeping her hand upon him—and he in the same voice answered, "Ya-as."

Then the little one seemed satisfied; she danced and capered about—chatted with this coarse, boorish boy—watched the curling flame, as it ascended, and built, all unconsciously, a fire of love and gratitude on the altar of that uncultivated heart.

The season went on, and Nettie's mother improved in health. The thin figure rounded out, the pale cheeks grew flushed, and she took long walks and drives along the quiet beach.

Every morning when Loose Ben came up to build the fire, that dear little voice would say: "Does you love God?" and when he answered his stony "Ya-as," she would add in precisely the same words as before, "Does you pray to God in the morning?" and again with that stupid, wondering look he would say, "Ya-as." But there was a change in this semi-barbarian. Gradually the rough, heavy locks were trained to fall back from his low, full brow, his wood-colored face grew clean, and his great hand, evincing some marks of attention by some mysterious process his clothes were mended, and little by little Loose Ben seemed to emerge from his loutish shell into a region of more thought and free scope.

The hotel loungers still jeered him, still called him all kinds of strange and original names, but he did not mind them; and had one seen him going up to his daily duty to room 56, a smile might have been detected lighting up his homely face, till it was almost handsome. And as he entered, day after day, came the same questions about love and prayer.

One Sabbath morning, never to be forgotten day, for I am telling no story of fiction, dear reader, the rap came as usual at room 56, and when the door was opened, in walked Loose Ben, worthy of the name no longer. He brought the room not in his usual way, he in a basket, and wonder! wonder! he was attired in a neat gray suit from head to foot, and under his left arm he carried a straw hat bound with black ribbon—Leisurely he went up to the hearthstone and set the kindlings and the wood in their place. Then he turned around to look for Antoinette. A little voice came from under the curtains—"Billy, does you love God? Does you pray in the morning?"

The boy drew his hands before his eyes, and as Nettie made herself visible, he went toward her, and fell upon his knees at her feet.

"You dear little angel," he sobbed, taking her dimpled hand, and covering it with kisses, "every morning you ask me that; and every morning I lie to you. Yes, I lie to you; for I love no God as you say. Then, you ask me if I pray every day, and I lie to you again, and keep lying to you, because I didn't know no better; because I poor Dutch boy. But this morning, you dear little angel, I tell you I love God. I tell you I pray to God—yes, I love—I pray," he added, the tears running down his coarse cheeks, while Mr. and Mrs. Hayden stood looking on full of astonishment. "You made me go to God, you little angel, you—you make me pray to God, and I tell you no lie longer."

Tears choked his utterance. Antoinette, scarcely knowing what it all meant, stood looking gravely toward him, a childish wonder in her face, until John Hayden snatched her from the floor and folded her with many kisses to his bosom.

The scene changes to a handsome dwelling in the city. Snow lays on all the streets, white and glittering—the naked trees, the gray craps of the houses, the iron railing, all are robed in the shroud of the autumn days. At some cold wind, some snow has entered that house; the white drapery of the windows is unfurled; children go in and come out again with sorrowful faces—the passing traveler looks mournfully up as he wanders by; there must be gloom in that house—yes, the white snow of death lays upon the forehead of an only child.

She is in her coffin now, with roses above her pale bosom, and the little silver plate says: "Antoinette Hayden, aged seven." What is her mission done so soon? Does the angel bathe her wings in the light of heaven? Even so!

In a darkened chamber sat the mother of this lovely flower, bearing her grief alone with God. No sigh broke from her bosom—no tear fell from her eyes; she looked calm—she was calm; but resign as she evidently was, the stern immobility of her features told that grief, deeper than could find any outlet, lay heavy at her heart.

Rising up after her long vigil, she went noiselessly down stairs toward the room where her child slept the last long sleep. As she was entering, a voice struck her ear as if some long-membered music had just sounded; the chord which she could not resist—she was calm; but resign as she evidently was, the stern immobility of her features told that grief, deeper than could find any outlet, lay heavy at her heart.

THE "ELIXIR."

Prepared by Dr. JAS. WILLIAMS, for the cure of DYSPEPSY, and nothing but DYSPEPSY, (as designated in another column), has, by its own merits, obtained for itself so high a reputation in Philadelphia, that Physicians acquainted with its properties, are using it themselves and prescribing it to their patients, convinced, by observation, of its great efficacy in restoring the disordered digestive organs to healthy function. Numerous cases of Dyspepsia of the most aggravated character which were abandoned as incurable by some of the Medical Faculty, have, by the use of this Elixir, been restored to perfect health, as attested certificates testify.

Mexican Mustang Liniment.

Intrinsic virtue alone could insure the success which this article has attained—for Rheumatism, Salt Rheum, Burns, Bruises, Stiff Joints, on Galls, Sprain, Polio, and Swellings upon Horses, it has no equal for Man or Beast. No person will be without it who has once tested its value. "And with reference to the general estimation of the Mustang Liniment, I can cheerfully say that no article ever performed so many cures in our neighborhood as this. L. W. SMITH, Ridgefield, Conn." S. LUTCH, Esq., Hyde Park, Vt., writes, "that the horse was considered worthless, (his case was spavin), but since the free use of the Mustang Liniment I have sold him for $150.—Your Liniment is doing wonders up here." Such testimony is reaching us every day. The half is not told. Every family should have it. Beware of imitations. The genuine Mustang is sold by all responsible dealers throughout the world. Beware of any other "Bragg's Liniment." It is a base imitation.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

MOSLEY'S

Tubular Wrought Iron

ARCH BRIDGES AND ROOFS.

THESE Bridges and Roofs have now been fully tested in this vicinity, and it is universally conceded that they cannot be excelled. The Roofs are wholly of Wrought Iron, or mixture of Wood and Iron; Sheeting always Iron.

The Bridges are wholly Wrought Iron except the floor, which is wood, like the floors of ordinary Bridges.

We are prepared to make these structures in any quantities, at prices about as follows:

Railroad Bridges, 50 feet span & 9,000 lbs., $17 50 per foot, lineal.

Common Road or Turnpike, 50 feet span, 2,600 lbs., $5 75 per foot, lineal.

Roofs, all iron; 50 feet width of building, $25 per 100 square feet, part wood and part iron, from $12 to $30 per square.

Increase of span of bridges or width of building makes an increase of price, but the increase in price is no more than the increase of wooden structures. We can furnish Iron of every size to work into Bridges and Roofs and Railroads, or other companies buying the right to use them and iron work, can make their own structures, one-third less than the above prices. Our structures weigh only from 1-4 to 1-10th more than wood, and in freight for a long distance buys our work. In a few days we will have at our factory, 49 West Third street in this city, four different specimens of our Roof, where the public can inspect them to their satisfaction. We beg them to give us a call, as all our work is warranted, and we ask no pay on ordinary jobs until the work is done and approved. Payment being secured on contract. Office, No. 66, West Third street, Cincinnati, O. June 17, 1858-twdw3m MOSLEY & CO.

SWAN & Co's Lottery Commissioners are endorsed by the Mayor and Post Master of Augusta, and an Ex-U. S. Senator of Georgia.

A Card from the Commissioners, and Certificates from the Mayor and others, of the City of Augusta:

Augusta, Richmond county, Georgia:
This is to certify that we have supervised the drawings of the Sparta Academy Lottery, Samuel Swan & Co., managers, at Augusta, Georgia, from the commencement of its drawings, and still continue to supervise the same. Each drawing is solely and exclusively under our control, and we can assure the public that the managers are men of honor, respectability and fair dealing, and every thing connected with the entire business is carried on with the most scrupulous and exact integrity.

LEON P. DUGAS,
FREDERICK C. BARBER,
Commissioners of Sparta Academy Lottery, Augusta, Ga., June 7th, 1858.

Augusta, Georgia, June 14th, 1858.
From long personal acquaintance with Leon P. Dugas and Frederick C. Barber, we take great pleasure in certifying that they are men of the highest integrity and probity, and in this community are esteemed and regarded as highly honorable and worthy citizens.

Hon. B. CONLEY,
Mayor of the City of Augusta,
JAMES M. SMYTHE, Esq.,
Postmaster of the City of Augusta,
Hon. JOHN P. KING,
Formerly U. S. Senator.

DYSPEPSY INDIGESTION.
DYSPEPSY.
A MORBID sensibility of the stomach and bowels, attended with obvious disorder of the digestive organs, Dyspepsia, and its attendant ills, such as Nausea, Headache, Vertigo, Dimness of Sight, Debility of the Nervous System, Hypochondria, Jaundice, Loss of Appetite, Wasting of the Strength, Flatulency, with frequent belching of wind, Violent attacks of indigestion, Constipation and weakness of the bowels, Bilious Vomiting, Burning sensations at the pit of the stomach, Pain in the chest or towards the right side, Sallowness of complexion, Depression of spirits and irritability of temper, etc., have, in many cases, defied the skill of the best medical practitioners in the world, and many cases have been abandoned as incurable.

Dr. J. Williams, a distinguished physician, after studying closely the practice of Drs. Abernethy and J. Johnston, England, and observing the nature of the disease in all its stages, from a simple indigestion to the most violent form, has discovered a new and powerful remedy, which he calls "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People." This medicine has been used in the United States, where it prevails to a greater extent than elsewhere, for over fifteen years, and in private practice, has proved itself more efficacious in the cure of Dyspepsia, than any medicine that has ever been prepared in any age or any climate, for the same purpose.

Having submitted it, with an explanation of its components, to a number of physicians of high standing, among whom were the late Drs. Joseph Hartsburn and J. C. Morton, it has received their entire approval, and many of the Medical Faculty are now using it personally, and in their families. As a tonic it is unequalled, and its properties are of so invigorating a nature, that it is given with perfect safety and success to the most tender infants.

The "Ellixir" is very gradual, but certain in its action upon the organs of digestion, the increased secretions of the liver, pancreas and mucous glands of the stomach, and requires that only one dose be taken in twenty-four hours; for confirmed Dyspepsia, accompanied with a high fever, and a state of hypochondria, has established the most unbounded confidence in the curative properties of this "Ellixir," in corroboration of which, read the following testimonials:

TESTIMONY.—"We, having used Williams' Anti-Dyspeptic Ellixir, with the most perfect satisfaction and success, take great pleasure in recommending it to all persons suffering with Dyspepsia, as we are fully convinced of its most valuable qualities in restoring the digestive powers, removing all pain and uneasiness, and imparting a healthy tone to the stomach."—John R. Penrose, 34 South Wharves, Casper Morris Tacony, Thomas Allison, President of Bank of Pennsylvania, and others.

Sixth; Edward H. Rowley, No. 14 North Wharves; Michael Dunn, Superintendent Merchants' Exchange; Hannah Styles, 400 North Third Street; John W. Filbert Street; H. N. Sperry, No. 12 Edward Street; Lawrence Newbold, No. 39 Chestnut Street; Philadelphia; Wm. Yarb, No. 310 West Third Street; H. N. Sperry, No. 97 Broadway; H. N. Sperry, No. 91 Water Street, New York.

The list of names could be extended to almost any length, but these testimonials are sufficient to prove the efficacy of this medicine. It is a true and reliable remedy, and we believe, as he asserts, solely by the use of Dr. Williams' "Ellixir," has saved me from an early death, I continue now in the enjoyment of perfect health.

H. N. SPERRY,
June 6th, 1857, No. 1104 N. Third St., Philada.
We, the undersigned, have known Mr. H. N. Sperry for several years, and we are fully convinced that his assertion can be perfectly relied on, and that we ourselves know that he has been wonderfully restored to health from the brink of the grave, and we believe, as he asserts, solely by the use of Dr. Williams' "Ellixir."

THOMAS J. CHANDLER, No. 149 Phoenix Street,
JOHN EHRET, Race Street above Second,
Personally appeared before me, one of the Aldermen of the City of Philadelphia, H. N. Sperry, who, being duly sworn, deposes and says that the facts set forth in the above certificate, are true in every particular.

Sworn and subscribed this 6th day of June, 1857.
